END NOTES

Notes from the Director:

I want to personally thank those in attendance at this show for your support of the theatre arts and the arts in education. I have been in awe of the support at Rancho Cucamonga High School; from the students, to the families, to the staff, and the community at large- I am truly grateful for your support.

I fell in love with theatre at a young age. It was my solace, my comfort, my home. Theatre gave me comfort not only within myself but also provided me with a community of support during adolescence- a tumultuous time I am sure we all remember fondly. I am so lucky now to have the opportunity to provide this same sense of community to the students of RCHS and I do not take my responsibility lightly. It is truly a magical experience to witness the students create and explore together.

I want to thank my family and friends; Mom and Dad, for always being there to support me, always. Megan, for being the best sister a brother could ask for and for enduring Survivor marathons with me. Branden, for listening when I need an ear and lifting my spirits when life becomes stressful. And to all my friends and family who continue to support my art and career. Thank you. I love you.

To the cast and crew- I am so honored to be your director. You all amaze me with your wit, creativity, and talent. On the surface, Clue is a zany murder mystery, with unpredictable twists and turns. Upon further inspection, you might find that it is very similar to Drama in that it's about a bunch of passionate misfits working together in one place to overcome obstacles. The obstacles just so happen to be murder. Oh- and everyone is a suspect...

A note on the show: Clue takes place on a dark and stormy night at Boddy Manor, not too far from Washington D.C. in 1954. The context of the play takes place at the height of McCarthyism and the Red Scare. Accusations of subversion, lack of evidence, book banning, and a general air of extremism were in the air. How apropos. No?

This show has been a favorite of mine because of the energy that you have put into it and the joy that you all have on stage together. We have done the hard work and now it is time to have fun! Break a leg!

-Loudermilk
